The hills are reared, the seas are scooped in vain.
If learning’s altar vanish from the plain.

Of thoughts which were not their thoughts.

The vehicles of learning are many and varied.
A complete changing of sets from 10:30 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. Strike Night, all night.
Where the vast cloudless sky was broken by one crow
I sat upon a hill — all alone — long ago;
But I never felt so lonely and so out of God's way
As here, where I brush elbows with a thousand every day.

Much learning doth make thee mad...
It was a bright, sunshiny day. There was a cool breeze blowing in from right field and the air was filled with the excitement of baseball. The Minnesota Gophers were in town and Kent boosters backed the stands. Here, there, everywhere came the cry of motivation, "N-C-Double-A, Kent all the way." This was the big year for the Flashes of Coach Dick "Moose" Paskert, who grabbed a share of their first MAC title and dumped co-champ Ohio University to win the right to represent the conference in the NCAA tournament. Kent dropped the first of a best-of-three series, 7-4, and the following day found itself on the bottom of a 13-2 score. The Flashes lost, but the feeling a real "winner" had finally made its way into the hearts of students. There was a new cheer now—"N-C-Double-A, Kent all the way in 1965."

diamondmen share mac title

Kent's 1964 baseball season was a "dream come true" for Coach Dick "Moose" Paskert and his diamondmen. They no longer had to dream of the "sugar and spice" of an outstanding season. Not only did the Flash baseballers grab a share of the Mid-American Conference crown, but they also went one step further to the NCAA tournament and the best record in Kent baseball history, 18-4. Paskert's charges barnstormed through the south in early spring, racking up a 6-0 slate before returning to the MAC baseball wars. Single losses to Ohio U and Duquesne marred the chances for a perfect regular season. In a rubber match with the co-champ OU, the Flashes banged out a 6-3 victory and the right to meet Minnesota of the Big 10 in the first round of the NCAA playoffs. The visiting Gophers brought frustration to the Flashes when they came to town cleaning house with 7-4 and 13-2 victories. Base running played the big part in the Flashes' success as the Kent "thieves" stole 70 sacks. Record thefts of 70 for a season and eight in one contest established new conference and school marks. Catcher Joe Santora led the base stealers with 22, while Jim Murphy wielded the big bat, swatting the oval at a .395 clip.

The day was April 6, 1964. The snow had vanished and amid the rustle of leaves and chirping of birds, the campus echoed the sounds of football. A new era had hit the Kent grounds as head coach Leo Strang took his first look at the candidates he had inherited when he accepted the Kent job on January 9. Strang, 41-year-old former head pilot of the famed Massillon Tigers, coach of three high school championship teams and 1959 Ohio Football Coach of the Year, was introducing the Flashes to the new "wing-T offense." Under the orientation of Strang, newly-appointed assistant coaches Anthony Ware, Nick Coso Jr. and Jack Robb Jr., and holdovers Francis "Frank" Smouse and Joe Dean, the gridders began 20 long, long days of sweat, bumping heads and mental gridiron strain. They fought hard for positions, for they knew that they must prove themselves to a new boss. It was the beginning of a new era in Kent football history—the era of the "New Golden Flashes."

"dig, dig, dig, dig, dig, dig!"
injuries plague footballers

Color, pageantry and exhilaration filled the air last fall as more than 12,000 persons jammed Memorial Stadium to watch new head Coach Leo Strang unveil his gridiron wares. It was "Shriners' Day" and by the time the smoke had cleared, every one of the onlookers knew it was "Kent's Day"—and quite possibly Kent's year for football fortune. The Flashes dumped the visiting Xaverian by a 15-2 count. The second game was no exception as the Flashes battled defending MAC champion Ohio U. to a 3-3 standstill. Here injuries began to pop up and the Flashes seemed to lose the poise and determination that had given them the name "New Golden Flashes." They lost their next three straight and foundered to a dismal 3-5-1 season showing. Despite their record, the Flashes looked somewhat better on paper, out-rushing all opponents 1,977 yards to 1,895 yards. Tom Clements and Fred Gissendaner paced Kent's scoring attack with 18 points each. The good things were yet to come, though, as Flash fans looked toward 1965. The nucleus of the Flash attack would be back and so would be the services of a freshman team termed "the finest in Ohio and Mid-American Conference history."

Call it association football, rugby, or whatever you like, but here at Kent it goes by the name of “soccer,” a sport for which participants are fighting hard to gain varsity status. Rudy Bachna, coach of the fast moving, roughly played kickball sport, piloted his team to another successful season, booting seven of ten opponents and tying two more. Jim Okiyo, the man with the “educated foot,” paced the squad for the second straight year in the goal department with 14 goals and four assists for 18 points, good for third place among all scorers in the 25 participating schools in Ohio. Okiyo and Bob Butler were named to the All-Ohio second team for 1964 and all 11 starters received a nomination for “pick-of-the-crop” positions among all-state booters. While the soccer indulgers continued to kick the ball around, officials were kicking around the idea of varsity status for the 1966 squad and the possibility of Mid-American Conference competition. The outlook seems “very favorable,” according to Bachna.

Joe Begala, Golden Flash wrestling coach and master of all wrestling coaches, is the winningest coach in the country. And his wrestlers aren’t about to let him lose that distinction. Another banner year was in the making in 1965 as the grapplers rolled up victories on their first six straight matches to perch high atop the Mid-American Conference.

Kent’s 22-8 trouncing of Ohio University brought Begala the 250th victory of his career.

A trio of losses to Purdue, Minnesota and Wisconsin at a triple dual meet at Wisconsin ended the Flashes’ hopes for a perfect season, but the matmen came back with wins over Toledo and Miami to finish with a 6-0 mark in the MAC and an 8-3 overall record. The MAC championships in March found the Flashes taking second place to conference champion Miami U by a 67-50 score.

Records fell right and left last spring as Coach Doug Raymond's trackmen raced to a 4-2 season record. Raymond, former coach of Olympian high jumper John Thomas, found another expert high jumper in the Flash fold, namely "Stormin'" Norman Curry. Curry brought fame to the Golden Flash track team by setting a new Mid-American Conference record in the high jump, going over the bar at 6'9 3/4". Six other Kent team records fell by the boards in 1964 as the Flash cindermen finished second in the All-Ohio meet and sixth in the MAC standings. Kent also finished second as a team in the Ohio U. relays with Marty Eisner making the biggest noise for the Flashes by setting the pace in the shot put. After losing their opening meet to West Virginia, the Flash tracksters' determination carried them to three consecutive victories and a second place finish in a triangular meet with Bowling Green and Baldwin Wallace.
Coach Doug Raymond had a smile three miles long during the 1964 cross country season as he watched sophomore sensation Pete Lorandeau lead the Flash harriers to a 6-1 mark. Lorandeau, Raymond’s golden racing artist, became Kent’s first All-American when he finished sixth in the Central Collegiate meet at Chicago, racked up Kent’s first individual harrier title in the MAC and without hesitation captured the top spot in all seven cross country meets. After finishing third in a triangular meet with Pitt and Ohio U, the Flashes raced to six consecutive victories. Lorandeau set new records for Kent in four of seven outings. But Raymond had more to smile about when he looked at freshman Sam Bair, who finished first in the All-Ohio Federation meet, second in the intercollegiate races and marked up six course records for the Kent freshmen, racing to an undefeated mark in dual competition.

With only three returning lettermen ready to make another "splash" for the Golden Flash tankers, Coach Bill Hoover had little hope of improvement over the 1964, 4-7 record. Despite thrilling performances by stand-out diver Ray Giaccabone and swimmers Don Hunston and Tom Wright, the Flash mermen dropped their first four meets. Practice and preparation paid off for the Kent swimmers as they bounced back with consecutive victories over Wayne State and Ball State, dropped a meet to Notre Dame and then came back with a resounding triumph over Youngstown. Hoover's tankers splashed their way to a final 5-8 mark.

Sailing has slowly become a popular sport among students and winning has slowly become a habit among the members of the KSU Sailing Club. Now in their second year, the Kent sailors, under the leadership of skippers Jerry Deimel and Chuck Hanson continue to make an even greater impression on other competing schools. For the second year in a row the Kent sailors brought home first place trophies for the Ohio Championships at Xavier and the Ohio Wesleyan Pennell Classic, as well as outracing Detroit for the top prize in a five-school event on the Lake Wingfoot waters. With the use of four boats, three of which are fiberglass, the seamen captured the fourth spots in area eliminations for the Timmie Augsten classic and in the 12-school race for the Ohio State mid-west college regatta laurels.
Basketball fever struck early and spread quickly as nine returning lettermen, four of them starters from the 1963-64 squad, were back in the fold under the guidance of Coach Bob Doll. Buttons appeared all over the campus proclaiming, "We're expecting BIG things." But the expectations of "big" things seemed to get smaller and smaller as the season wore on. The "Dollbabies" had their eye on a season that would give Kent its best showing since the 14-10 record posted by the 1951-52 hardwoodsmen. Kent burned the nets for a 61 per cent shooting mark in its debut, for a 119-80 triumph over Wayne State. Things were looking up for Doll's charges, but the hot and cold running cagers slipped to a disappointing 9-11 season mark and a 4-8 showing in the MAC. Junior Doug Sims paced the Flash scoring attack over the 20-game slate with a 14.2 average. Norm Curry hauled in rebound honors with 179 caroms in 19 games for a 9.4 average. The Flashes 4-8 mark in league play was good for fifth place. Floor general Wilson Graham was the one Flash to land a spot on an all-conference team, being named to the second all-MAC squad.
Hand any of the Lake Erie Intercollegiate Rifle Conference teams a magic lamp and it's a sure bet their first wish will be to push Sgt. Eugene Tibbs' shooters out of the league. The Kent marksmen caused nothing but headaches for conference foes this season, blasting out a 9-1 record and walking off with the conference championship. Six lettermen returned to Tibb's camp to shoot again, but it was first-year man Jim Froom who made the biggest noise, leading the conference with a 282.4 average.

The riflemen racked up the top spot in the Walsh Invitational meet, with veteran Jim Nehrer finishing second. A third place finish in the National Rifle Association regional matches capped the squad's most successful season ever.

A missed three-foot putt in a match with Bowling Green cost Coach Jay Fischer's golfers the chance to capture their first winning season in the history of the school, but failed to keep the linksmen from racking up their best record thus far. The golfers, paced by Doug Cooper's 74.6 average, ended the season 9-10, with a seventh place finish in the Mid-American Conference. Highlighting the season for the links crew was a fourth place finish in the Ohio Intercollegiate matches at Ohio State. Cooper and Ron Kurtz captured the medalist honors for the season with four-under-par 65's against Western Michigan and Ohio Wesleyan respectively. Both Kurtz and Cooper will return to bolster the 1965 squad. Fisher also has four promising freshmen breaking into the lineup. Mike Joyce, second best scorer on the squad with a 76.9 average, was the only Flash lost by graduation.
For the Kent women swimmers, the third time was the charm. The Flash mermaids swam to a 4-1 record in their third year of competition. Under the observation of Mrs. Del Wilson and Mrs. Pat Podoll, the women dunked Bowling Green and Hiram, dropped a decision to the University of Michigan and then bounced back with wins over Western Ontario and Ohio State. Paced by freshman standout Susan Hadley, the girls raced to a second place finish in the Intercollegiate Swimming and Diving Championship which they hosted December 5. Michigan won with 110 1/2 points while Kent garnered 91. Miss Hadley was clocked at 0:27.6 in the 50-yard butterfly for a new intercollegiate record.

Women's field hockey continued to make its presence felt among the athletic teams on the Kent State campus as the girls posted a 3-1-2 record for the season. Under the guidance of Mrs. Fay Biles, the squad opened the season with victories over West Liberty and Hiram teams, dropped a 4-2 decision to Ohio State and then rebounded to slap Bowling Green, 1-0. The women closed out the season with ties against Lake Erie and Slippery Rock Colleges. The three victories posted by the squad brought the women's field hockey won-loss record for the school to 51-3.

Miss Barbara Drumm continued her mastery at coaching women’s basketball as the female cagers racked up a 3-1 slate in their first four outings. The women cagers suffered the opening game jitters again for the second straight year. They dropped the first game of the season, but rebounded to capture victories in the next three straight. The club is composed of two squads, the Blue and the Gold. Last year the teams combined to post an 8-1 record in nine weekends of competition.
tennis hopes blow away

It was a good year and yet it was a bad year for the 1964 tennis squad. Coach Carl Chestnutt's expectations of a winning season blew away with the brisk spring winds as his charges posted a 7-8 season slate and nestled in fifth spot in the MAC. Victories were few in the opening weeks of play, but with a little experience under their belts, the squad came on to post four more victories than last year. Larry Stark, number-two man on the squad, finished with the best singles record, 11-2, followed closely by number-one man Ernie Kuhn with a 12-3 slate. Kuhn and Arpad Endredi were tops in doubles competition with a 9-5 showing.

When it comes to gymnastics among Ohio colleges, all roads lead to Kent. Here Coach Rudy Bachna has built the powerhouse of Ohio gymnastics squads during his six years at the helm. Outstanding among Bachna’s 1964 charges were Marie Walther and Betty Jean Maycock. Miss Walther wrote Kent’s name in Olympic books last year when she participated in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, Japan. Her other honors included five firsts in all-around U.S. competition and participation in the U.S. team in Czechoslovakia. Miss Maycock qualified for the 1964 Olympic final trials and captured the FIG Pin, a top award of the International Gymnastics Federation. The Bachna team took first place in the Women’s Collegiate Meet and successfully defended for the fourth straight year a first place in the Men’s Lake Erie A.A.U. Gymnastics Championships. The women also captured top laurels by bringing home three first-place trophies.
Sometimes muddy, sometimes messy, but always action-packed are the annual May Day Relays, sponsored by the sisters of Gamma Phi Beta in cooperation with Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Other Gamma Phi activities include a Sayonara Party, a hayride and square dance and a spring formal. The sorority was first in Penny Carnival and second in Homecoming competition. Dedication to community service brought national recognition to the sisters of Delta Zeta this year. The D.Z.'s have furnished a therapy room for pre-school deaf children in the Music and Speech Center and donate funds to Carville Hospital in Louisiana and Gallaudet College, a school for the deaf in Washington, D.C. The sorority holds an annual Christmas party for Kent third graders. Members also purchase milk for underprivileged youngsters during the school year, in conjunction with Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.
Practice and hard work brought top honors for the sisters of Delta Gamma in Campus Day competition. A float entitled "‘Tis My Laffin’ Place," complete with Brer Rabbit and Brer Bear, and a Songfest selection of "Anchors Aweigh" proved to be the winning combination that brought the D.G.'s two first place trophies. Highlighting the D.G. social calendar are winter and spring formals, an annual Founder's Day Banquet and the FIJI-DG Halloween Party. Members are active in aiding the blind in the area by reading to them with the help of a sound scribe and helping a blind family with household tasks.
A dozen members of the younger set are guests each quarter at a Chi Omega house party. The parties bring together orphaned brothers and sisters after periods of separation in different foster homes. Other Chi O activities include a spring formal and a winter dinner dance at which the sorority presents its Man of the Year Award. A new trophy in the Chi O showcase this year is the first place award for the sorority’s Homecoming display.

Panhellenic Council, coordinating and governing body for the ten campus sororities, received an honorable mention award as one of the outstanding Panhellenic Councils in the nation. Composed of three delegates from each sorority, Pan Hel this year sponsored the purchase of identifying green blazers for all sorority women and initiated a Sorority Service Award for the outstanding senior sorority woman. The organization joins Interfraternity Council in uniting all KSU Greeks in seven days of activities and celebration each fall. Included in the events of Greek Week are a torch parade, concert, the tricycle derby and the crowning of Venus and Apollo. Junior Panhellenic provides a training ground for sorority pledges.

Only local, independent fraternity on campus, the Collegiates marked their tenth anniversary as part of the KSU fraternity world this year. The organization was founded late in the fall quarter of 1954 by a group of seven veterans. Members take part in all university intramural sports. Highlight of the Collegiate social calendar is the annual Roman Toga party. Other yearly events include a spring formal and a Founder’s Day banquet.
Members of KSU's youngest sorority, Alpha Epsilon Phi, have taken part in many phases of campus activity since the group's local founding in 1963. In sorority scholarship, members placed third for spring quarter and second winter quarter. The group also captured a second place trophy in Rowboat Regatta competition. Parents of members are entertained each year at a Mother's Day Banquet and a Dad's Day coffee hour. Campus and community service projects include ushering at cultural programs and University Theatre productions and aiding mentally retarded children.
Study sessions must certainly be in style at the Delta Tau Delta house. The chapter set a new high in fraternity scholastic achievement when it won first place for fraternity scholarship during winter quarter. Studying, however, is only a part of the fraternity's schedule. A winter formal, a spring formal, an alumni party and the annual Founder's Day Banquet round out the year's activities for the members of Delta Tau Delta.
Relocation was the project of the year for the FIJIS. Their new residence, composed of two adjoining fraternity houses, is on East Summit Street. With all the work and excitement of moving, members still found time to capture first place honors for Rowboat Regatta, an award for the most original Penny Carnival display and second place in Campus Day Songfest competition. Philanthropic activities included treating youngsters from the Akron Children’s Home to a football game and picnic. A Christmas party, a Purple Garter party, a Fiji Island party and a Norris pig dinner were among the many FIJI social activities.

The Theta Chi’s once again demonstrated their ingenuity and skill for dramatization as members brought home their fifth consecutive first place trophy for the fraternity division of Pork Barrel. Their prize-winning skit was entitled “What if a Shoemaker...” Members also produced the third place float in the 1964 Campus Day parade. Delegates from the fraternity attended a regional convention in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and a National Convention in Miami Beach, Florida. High spots on the Theta Chi social calendar were the annual Monster Party, the Hawaiian Party and the Red Carnation Formal.

Academic efforts of Alpha Chi Omega were rewarded in duplicate this year. The sorority received not only the Panhellenic Scholarship Trophy but also an award for excellence presented at its national convention. Participation in campus events also brought its rewards. Members won first place in 1964 Pork Barrel competition and captured the sorority all-sports trophy. The chapter provided funds for therapy for five Kent youngsters with cerebral palsy. Social events included winter and spring formals, Lollipop Hop and a senior breakfast.

A combination of scholarship, service and participation won laurels for the sisters of Alpha Phi for the third consecutive year. Members once again captured the Delta Upsilon Outstanding Sorority Trophy. Top awards in Rowboat Regatta and May Day Relays and a second place in Campus Day Songfest also went to Alpha Phi. Members worked with the Kent Heart Association and initiated a new Alpha Phi chapter at Baldwin Wallace College this year. Social activities included a Delta Upsilon-Alpha Phi football game, a spring formal and a Christmas theme party. The sorority is sponsor of the All-Greek Formal, which features presentation of all new Greek pledges.

Vocational interests and fraternity life are combined by the brothers of Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity. The KSU chapter was tops in the nation in the annual chapter efficiency contest this year. Professional activities, which include field trips and assisting at functions of the College of Business Administration, are supplemented by numerous social events. Included are a spring formal, a winter dance and a Monte Carlo party. Members took first place honors for the University at the 1964 Rowboat Regatta.
Demonstration of both brawn and brains brought honors to the brothers of Phi Delta Theta this year. The Phi Delt's fought their way to first place in the intramural wrestling tournament and captured second place for fraternity scholarship. National recognition for scholastic improvement and the Chi Sigma pledge scholarship trophy for winter quarter also went to the Phi Delt's. A Christmas Ball and a spring formal head the list of social activities for members of Phi Delta Theta.
Governing and legislative organization for the 19 Kent State fraternities, Interfraternity Council is devoted to unification of Greek spirit and activities on campus. The group is composed of the president and one underclassman from each fraternity. IFC is co-sponsor of Greek Week and is in charge of rush program seminars and leadership meetings. Outstanding fraternity scholastic achievement is honored through quarterly IFC scholarship awards. A member of the National Interfraternity Council, Kent’s IFC sends representatives to the national IFC convention each year.

Working toward becoming a chapter of the national fraternity Sigma Chi held top priority for members of Chi Sigma this year. As part of the preparations, the group became a local fraternity on March 25, 1964. The fraternity is sponsor of the Baker Fund, which provides speech therapy for underprivileged children. Members also present a scholarship trophy to the fraternity pledge class with the highest academic average each quarter. Rounding out the year is the fraternity’s spring formal, which features the crowning of the Sweetheart of Chi Sigma.

Reorganization and change were the keywords at the Phi Kappa Theta house this year. The former organizational framework and traditions of the fraternity underwent a complete revamping during spring quarter. Top social events of the fraternity’s new program were their traditional Sweater Hop, featuring crowning of a queen, a winter formal and picnics with KSU sororities. Each year the brothers of Phi Kappa Theta present a Citizenship Award to an outstanding member of the community. This year the award went to Frank Lange, mayor of Kent.
Scholarship, service and socialization fill the yearly program of the brothers of Tau Kappa Epsilon. The fraternity promotes high scholastic achievement among its members by sponsoring a tutoring program for pledges and a scholarship award program for actives. Members present a Christmas tree and food to a needy family in the area each year during the holiday season. On the social side, the TKE program features a pig roast each fall quarter, a Casino party during the winter and a Sweetheart formal each spring.

“First of all, servants of all, we shall transcend all.” sums up the aspirations of the brothers of Alpha Phi Alpha. The national fraternity, founded in 1904 at Cornell University, was the first to provide Negro college men with the opportunity to participate in Greek Activities. Kent’s Epsilon Delta chapter, founded in 1958, has sponsored community service projects for both campus and community. The Alpha Phi Alpha yearly social program is climaxed by a formal each spring quarter. Members also make quarterly visits to brother chapters.
May 14 was a red-letter day for the sisters of Delta Sigma Theta. The day marked the group’s first anniversary as a chapter of the national sorority. Other top events in the sorority’s calendar include May Week, which emphasizes scholastic achievement, and the annual Founder’s Day celebration, set aside for rededication to the sorority’s ideals and purposes. Service projects have included adopting a local youngster and donating funds for national scholarship awards. Annual social activities include a Mother’s Weekend tea, a Wild West party and the spring quarter Coronation Ball.
Keeping up their reputation for athletic prowess, the men of Delta Upsilon retired the fraternity all-sports trophy by capturing the intramural championship for the third consecutive year. Kent’s chapter of Delta Upsilon was named the “most improved chapter” by the national organization. Service projects included aiding local fraternities with “Help Week” activities. The DU’s award an annual trophy to the outstanding Kent sorority. Social events include a DU-Alpha Phi football game and a yearly spring formal.

Athletic and academic endeavors of the brothers of Sigma Nu were rewarded with success this year. The fraternity captured second place in all-university athletic competition and showed the greatest improvement in scholarship among fraternities, moving from sixteenth to sixth place. With their sister sorority Alpha Phi, the men of Sigma Nu sponsored the All-Greek Formal at the University Club in Akron. Other social events included weekly house parties and the White Rose Formal, held spring quarter.
Service on both the national and local levels distinguishes the members of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. The Alpha Xi's help support Howell House, a home for juvenile delinquents in Chicago. Locally, they donate both time and money to the Happy Day School for mentally retarded children and Alpha Enterprise, an organization which employs the handicapped. Alpha Xi social activities are highlighted by the spring quarter Pink Rose Formal and Valentine and Christmas parties. The sorority sends representatives to an annual convention.

The Kappa Sigma chapter house on University Street took on a new look this year. Members pitched in to give the house a complete remodeling and renovation. The chapter claimed third place in the fraternity division of Pork Barrel and a second place trophy for fraternity intramural bowling. Kappa Sig’s were third in scholarship among KSU fraternities. Annual social events include a Casino party and the spring quarter Stardust Ball.
Two rival factions; the Greeks, the Independents,
A conflict never resolved.
What's new? Why, Korb, of course. New in design and fresh in spirit, Korb Hall is now in its "freshman" year at KSU. The latest addition to university living quarters opened its doors in September to 371 freshman coeds. The first "high-rise" residence hall on campus and the first to house all freshmen, the six-story structure is named for Otto J. Korb, a member of the Kent State Board of Trustees for 22 years. Women of Korb share dining and recreational facilities with residents of nearby Eastway Center. Getting off to a quick start in planning a program of activities for the new hall, Korb coeds scheduled lectures by KSU faculty members and house parties for residents. They also sponsored several mixers with residents of men's halls.

"I've locked myself out again, Mrs. Kalbaugh. Can I have a key to..." This common complaint from an Allyn Hall resident can easily be remedied by the "five-minute key"—unless, of course, she's already ten minutes late to class and her coat and books are behind that locked door. Life at Allyn is occasionally complicated by problems such as this, but the 369 residents can also lay claim to many achievements in the hall's two-year history. Memorable honors include a first place award for independent women's volleyball and second place in the 1964 Campus Day Songfest. With the aid of some brotherly advice from the men in neighboring Clark Hall, Allyn placed third in Campus Day float competition. With a 2.6 academic average, Allyn residents placed second scholastically among women's halls for spring quarter. The hall also joins with Lake, Olson and Fletcher to hold an annual Halloween party.

It's 8 p.m. and Carol is in a hurry. She races from the library in a gallant effort to keep an 8:10 date. Her destination is Fletcher Hall in far-away Eastway Center. Reaching the Eastway Complex, she rushes blindly up some stairs, opens a door and—woops! "Uh—Hello there," says a deep, masculine voice. With red face and fast-pounding heart, she shuts the door and heads from neighboring Manchester safely back to Fletcher Hall. One of four halls in the Eastway coeducational complex, Fletcher houses 375 coeds. Traditional parts of the two-year-old hall's annual program are Easter and Valentine's Day parties, as well as a Christmas party for underprivileged children with Manchester residents. Residents strive to maintain scholastic standards by honoring the corridor with the highest academic average each quarter and by inviting a professor for dinner and talk each week. The hall is named for Mona Fletcher, professor emeritus of political science.

"And the winner in this division is Prentice Hall." The 367 girls of Prentice have a knack for winning trophies. Last year a Prentice team took honors as WRA swimming champions. Several girls returned from Rowboat Regatta with trophies for the innertube relay, the sweatshirt relay and the rowboat race and the overall trophy for independent women. Residents also left the annual Pork Barrel competition with a trophy bearing a second place insignia. Frequent mixers and exchange dinners also figure into a Prentice coed's plans. Each spring, a recognition banquet honors officers, judicial board and chairmen of special events. Two scholarship plaques in the main lobby recognize the ten girls with top academic averages and the top academic corridor each quarter.

Did you ever try to unlock "your" door, only to find that the key would not turn? The first thing to do is look for help. After several moments of knocking and rattling the knob without success, you suddenly realize that you're on the wrong floor. Such embarrassing moments come occasionally to the best of coeds—even those of Dunbar Hall. But that little bit of letdown doesn't take away any of the spirit and inspiration that run throughout the hall. Upperclassmen lend the freshmen a helping hand with tutoring sessions three nights a week. The names of ten girls with the highest scholastic averages are posted on a plaque each quarter. Each spring a tea is held to honor all residents named to the Dean's List for one or more quarters and a banquet recognizes all residents who served the hall throughout the year.
Engleman coeds hold honor role

No counselors lock the door at 1 a.m. No one keeps track of who gets in when. It sounds a little like a coed’s dream, but at Engleman Hall constant supervision is out. Getting in on time and closing the hall are a matter of individual responsibility at the only honor dorm on campus. The honors system was expanded this year when four undergraduates were chosen to take the place of graduate assistants to the head resident. “Meet Your Professor” has become an annual Engleman Project. Last year, the 235 coeds “adopted” Professor James Engleman, grandson of the university’s third president for whom the hall was named. In campus competition, Engleman captured first place for its Campus Day float, two trophies at Rowboat Regatta and the Women’s Intramural Baseball trophy. Celebration of a 25th Anniversary was recently held.
In her first few weeks at Verder Hall, the new freshman quickly learns the time-saving tricks that are a part of every coed’s store of knowledge. Any one of the 384 Verderites can skillfully polish her nails flamingo pink while she dries her hair, munches on a Mounds Bar and crams for 8 a.m. exam on the French Revolution. Between chapters she decides what to wear to class the next day, and fills her roommates in on what happened at the Hub that afternoon. The hall is home of the Verder Chorus, noted for its bright and spirited vocalization. Last spring its talents helped bring home the first place trophy and the all-campus trophy for the Campus Day songfest. Named for the first KSU Dean of Women, Verder features yearly programs of speakers and educational films, and joins with residents of other halls to hold mixers.
A clanging fire alarm fills the air and momentary confusion turns everything upside down. Girls in rollers and pin curls tumble out of bed or jump from their desks, trying hard to remember the rules. Shut the windows. Turn on the light. Grab a coat and towel and scramble down the hall for the nearest exit. In every direction, 720 coeds pour from the doors of Terrace Hall and stand shivering to wait for all-clear. The burning lights form a huge "X" at the front of the KSU campus, outlining the four long wings that form the largest women's residence hall. The wings join in a sunken lounge at the building's hub where all 720 congregate for meetings and house parties. A year-round program of activities at Terrace includes a fall mixer and Halloween Party and a Sadie Hawkins Dance. Enthusiastic participation in intramural sports brought Terrace the WRA All-Sports trophy last year. Publication of a hall newspaper, and a program of reading for the blind were recently initiated by Terrace residents.

Closed-circuit TV gives Terrace viewers a behind-the-scenes look at University Food Service economy.

"On the first date?"
terrace coeds are fired-up competitors

"All I wanted to do was go out for coffee and it's been over an hour."
An excited Moulton Hall coed dashes from her second floor room to answer a phone call, only to find the telephone busy. Up the steps to the third floor phone, just in time to see someone else pick up the receiver. Down the hall and three flights of steps to first floor, only to find another busy phone. Back to second floor, and success at last. She clutches the receiver. "I'm sorry," says a voice, "but your party has hung up." This hectic pace is normal for Moulton Hall, home of 183 coeds. Founded in 1915, the hall is marked by the color and tradition of half a century, with each generation of coeds making its own contribution. Moulton is the scene of the annual International Tea and the Campus Day Art Show, which features the residents' original work. Named for the first president of the Board of Trustees, Moulton features monthly dinner and discussion sessions with faculty members and sponsors an annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children.
Lowry girls prepare for exams

It was 3 a.m. and a few sleepy voices could still be heard from a corner of the Lowry Hall recreation room. "O.K. kids, it says here in my notes the date for the Fall of Rome is—Is that a nine or a seven? Well, it's either 476 or 496 A.D."

With a morning exam in history of civilization looming ahead, ten heads are often better than one for interpreting scrambled lecture notes.

Scholarship is encouraged throughout the year at Lowry, home of 142 KSU coeds. Lowry was founded in 1912 and named for James H. Lowry who introduced the bill in the Ohio Senate that established KSU. With tall-pillared porch and ivy-covered walls, it stands as a reminder of early years at Kent. Modern Lowry traditions include frequent dinners with faculty members, mixers, open houses and a Christmas party for underprivileged children. House parties throughout the year complete the Lowry social calendar.

An extra half hour means time for more conversation, one more cup of coffee at the Hub or a slower walk home. Kent State coeds got that extra half hour through the efforts of Associated Women Students, governing body for all KSU women. The extension of weekday hours followed a thorough study by AWS Executive Committee. Weekend late permissions were also made available. Every coed automatically becomes an AWS member when she enrolls in the university. AWS is co-sponsor of the annual winter quarter Pork Barrel and the newly-initiated Homecoming Carnival. Both future and former coeds get a sample of college living during Little Sis and Mothers' Weekends, annual events sponsored by AWS. All senior women are honored at a banquet held each spring quarter, with special awards going to those who have made outstanding contributions to Kent State University.
A new addition to KSU student government is the Women’s Interhall Council, organized to provide coordination for activities of women’s residence halls. The president and vice president of each hall attend weekly meetings to exchange ideas and to discuss any problems that arise in the halls. The council is responsible for all legislation pertaining to hall government and for reviewing and recognizing hall constitutions. Interhall Social, Cultural and Scholarship Committees are chairmaned by council members. This year the Council initiated a rotating scholarship plaque that was awarded to the women’s residence hall with the highest academic average each quarter. Also planned were a winter quarter Residence Hall Week and a program of extensive faculty participation in residence hall activities.
Relaxation, according to campus planning experts, is a necessary, integral part of student life, and has been well provided for through the construction of EASTWAY CENTER. Although officially destined to become the focal point of extracurricular activities within the next few years, this artificial combination of rock, sand, metal and wood can never completely replace the intrinsic beauty and quiet diversion provided by the COMMONS during early Spring, after a warm rain.
A woman moved, is like a fountain troubled, muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty . . .

men's student association works behind scenes

More than 1000 fathers of Kent State students witnessed the Oct. 3 battle between the Flashes and Ohio University’s Bobcats as part of the annual Dad’s Day. Fathers of team members were seated in places of honor along the field. Sponsoring the event was the Men’s Student Association. The 22-member legislative and judicial body for all university men sponsors a variety of social activities throughout the year, including the Senior Men’s Banquet, the winter quarter Pork Barrel Show and a Friday night Homecoming Carnival. MSA also takes part in the bi-weekly President’s Roundtable, discussion sessions designed to keep student leaders up-to-date on current university problems. Members are chosen through election or appointment.

Do you pour the soap in the washer first or wait until it's full of water? Is it O.K. to put your madras sport shirt in with the white dress shirts? What'll happen to your new green Kent State sweatshirt if you put it in the dryer? The 280 residents of Stopher Hall hear lectures on how to study, get tips on physical fitness and view films on current political issues, but down in the laundry room, they're on their own. Domestic problems like these are often baffling, but most other phases of residence hall life are covered by Stopher's well-organized social, scholastic and athletic programs.

A hayride, cookout and Polynesian Party fill the social calendar. Residents hold an annual Christmas Party for underprivileged children and help keep the hall scholastic average high through their own library and tutoring system. These activities have lent the oldest men's residence hall, founded in 1949, the air of tradition that comes not only with age but also with achievement.

"Hey! Sweep that dust under the bed and toss that laundry in a drawer somewhere. Get those sneakers off the desk and get some books out. My mom’s coming up to see the room in twenty minutes.” Along with scholastic matters and good times, the men of Lake Hall have to learn to cope with the more mundane parts of college living like handling a mop and broom. Active participants in campus events, Lake residents captured the all-sports trophy for men’s intramurals, as well as coming in first in baseball and second in football, basketball and track competition. On the social side, residents sponsored several dances and presented a program of films to help relieve the tensions of finals week spring quarter. An Awards Banquet each spring honors outstanding residents. Founded in 1961, the hall was named for Charles H. Lake of the Kent Board of Trustees.
herbie beats drum at olson

"Somebody help me carry this drum. Don't wrinkle the banner! Hurry up! The game starts in an hour and we want to get our seats." Another Olson Hall delegation is on its way to a football game to cheer everything from the team, to the fictitious "Herbie," to Olson Hall itself.

Rejuvenation of campus spirit is the aim of the loud-yelling Olson fans. The hall is noted for its enthusiasm in many phases of campus life. Its activities include several mixers and exchange dinners and Polynesian Yachtzee. Lectures with coffee and discussion hours as well as a hall library and tutoring system help further scholastic interests. New trophies in the hall showcase represent two first places in Rowboat Regatta, a first place in Penny Carnival and second place in the Campus Day Songfest. To end each year, an awards banquet honors outstanding residents.
Thirty men crowd around the hall piano, snapping their fingers in time to the driving, syncopated rhythm being played. Another one of Clark Hall's spontaneous jazz sessions is under way. These musical get-togethers draw students from all parts of the KSU campus to Clark, one of four halls in coeducational Eastway Center. Off to a good start in filling their trophy case, the men of Clark were all-university swimming champions and tops in residence hall bowling competition. Eastway's recreation facilities, including bowling, billiards and ping pong, as well as parties and mixers with the neighboring women's residence halls, help provide relaxation for Clark's 373 residents. Last year a team from Clark placed second in the KSU quiz, sponsored by radio station WKSU. The hall bears the name of Raymond Clark, first dean of the Kent State University Graduate School.

“Seventy, seventy-one, that’s seventy-two chairs in our lounge. Now if that isn’t some sort of record . . . .” wondered a Manchester resident. Well, it is! Manchester Hall is the undisputed owner of more chairs in its lounge than any other residence hall. All 378 Manchester men work hard to fill their trophy case. Featuring a strip tease by Queen Jim Compton, their satire on Christopher Columbus won first place in the 1964 Pork Barrel contest. As proof of their athletic prowess, the men of Manchester were all-university volleyball and all-dormitory basketball champions. During the Christmas season, they join with their “sisters” in Fletcher to bring Santa Claus and Tinker Bell to underprivileged children. The hall was named for Raymond Manchester, dean of men emeritus.

All Kent State men are assured of a well-balanced social and cultural program through the 22-member Men’s Interhall Council. The governing and coordinating group for all men’s residence halls has proved itself an integral part of KSU activities.

Sponsoring annual Christmas parties for underprivileged children, aiding in organization of the Little United Nations Assemblies and helping bring the NCAA wrestling championships to the Kent campus last year are just a few of the Council’s service-to-the-university programs. The Council also helps promote scholarship by providing monetary grants for residence hall libraries. A highlight of winter quarter social activities, the Queen of Queens Dance, was expanded into a Residence Hall week by the Interhall Council this year.

“And still be doing, never done,” reads an old adage, and no one is more aware of it than Student Senate, the legislative branch of student government.

Composed of 25 senators and three officers, its functions are to act upon legislation, pass ordinances and create committees and inferior courts. It initiated three standing committees: allocations, central research and organizations. The allocations committee reviews organizational budgets; central research finds information needed by Senate; the committee on organizations studies campus constitutions. Senate also created a Student Forum, where campus issues are debated by any interested students. The body was formed under the constitution adopted by students spring quarter, 1964.
The rapid change that is part of a growing university was nowhere more evident this year than in the newly-reorganized student government. The constitution accepted by a campus-wide vote spring quarter initiated a movement that placed more responsibility than ever before in the hands of student leaders. Heading an administration often sparked by controversy and discussion were the president of the student body and the executive and advisory cabinets. Still in experimental stages, the changes represent a liberalization found on few campuses in the nation.
A touch of mystery and magic were featured at University Showtime, a new program of student talent presented in October by the Student Activities Board. The show was just one of a long list of programs made available to KSU students throughout the year through the work of the 175-member SAB. Designed to provide something for everyone, other SAB activities included bowling, chess, checkers and billiards tournaments, movies of away football games, hootenannies, dances and fashion shows. Traditional parts of any KSU weekend are the Friday afternoon TGIF dances in the Union and the SAB flicks, always attended by capacity crowds. The board also sponsors a photo contest and a yearly Fine Arts Festival. Highlighting the winter quarter schedule are the many activities of Winter Weekend. Spring quarter features Rowboat Regatta and a sports car rally. Climaxing the year-long program is the SAB banquet, honoring all who have contributed their time and efforts.

Some of the biggest and brightest events in the Kent State student's social calendar are the result of long hours of work and planning by the University Social Committee. In time with the rapidly changing pace of life at KSU, Social Committee expands and re-styles traditional campus functions to attract and interest the largest possible number of students. A new addition to Homecoming Weekend was a carnival, sponsored by AWS and MSA. Social Committee also brought the Lettermen, Della Reese and the Ralph Marterie Orchestra to entertain students and returning alumni. Top Hop and the choosing of the Duke of Kent and Miss Kent State are highlights of the committee's winter quarter program. Spring quarter Campus Day, KSU's most colorful event, is the third of Social Committee's "big three." The many details of the parade, concert, songfest and dance are painstakingly planned for weeks in advance. A further Social Committee duty is formulation of the policies of the "Social Code," published each spring quarter. The seven student and seven faculty members of the committee are appointed through application.

"Barb, I thought I made things very plain when I told you specifically not to wear three-inch heels."
"Now remember, Jackie, when they throw you in, really squeal, the men will be quite put out if you don't."
Swimming, bowling, tennis, volleyball—Kent State coeds can take their pick of a long list of sports activities sponsored throughout the year by the Women’s Recreation Association. A spirit of friendly competition prevails in the many intramural events held each quarter. Winners in each sport receive their trophies at the annual WRA spring banquet, where an all-sports award and a participation award are also presented. In addition to competitive sports events, WRA sponsors clubs for girls interested in modern dance, folk dancing, fencing, gymnastics and synchronized swimming. Special events in the WRA calendar include a fall roundup, which introduces new students to the recreation program. High School Play Day for teenage girls and the WRA Picnic. Representatives attend a biennial convention and a biennial regional conference of recreation groups. A 30-member board governs the association, in which all Kent State women have membership.
Friendship, leadership and service are long-standing traditions of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity. Since its founding in 1948, Kent State's Epsilon Psi chapter has compiled a long and impressive list of contributions to the university and the student body. APO service projects include collecting donations for the Cancer Fund and CARE, selling campus pacs and helping with the New Student Program. The 37-member chapter also maintains campus bulletin boards and the commuters' bulletin board in Kent Hall. To encourage high academic standards, APO awards an annual scholarship to either a member or non-member and operates a small library with special information on career opportunities. At campus election times, APO members set up and maintain voting booths and count and total ballots. They also usher at university functions and sponsor an all-university dance. To join the fraternity, a man must be affiliated with the Boy Scouts of America and show his willingness to serve.
league guards tradition, pushes school spirit

Much of the increased school spirit can be attributed to one of the newest organizations on campus, the Chestnut League. Not only is it trying to co-ordinate and intensify promotion of school spirit, but it is also the guardian of Kent State University traditions. The Chestnut League is composed of the cheerleaders, Flasherettes, K Krew, IV Committee and the rally squad. The K Krew provides color at all home sporting events with various decorations and adds spirit by distribution of noisemakers, balloons, and gold sheet megaphones. Preservation of Kent's traditions, such as the seal, the victory bell on the Commons, the teas for queen candidates for Homecoming and Campus Days; and entertaining visiting student body representatives is the responsibility of the IV Committee. However, the Chestnut League is not all work and no play. The Flasherettes hold one social event for the group each quarter and a dinner is held each fall.

Symbolized by the large red key carried by all new pledges, Cardinal Key honors women students who have distinguished themselves through scholarship and service to Kent State. To be selected for membership, a woman must have at least a 3.0 accumulative average, take part in extracurricular activities and show evidence of personal growth and maturity. The group is co-sponsor of the annual Penny Carnival. Members usher at university lectures and plays and serve as hostesses for coffee hours and student receptions. To promote high academic achievement, Cardinal Key awards several annual scholarships to women students and presents the Cardinal Key Womanhood Award to an outstanding senior at the end of each year. A dance with Blue Key, men’s honorary, is a yearly social activity. In addition to serving KSU, the group aims at developing leadership and character. Membership in Cardinal Key, limited to 25, is one of the highest honors attainable by a Kent State University coed.
To introduce new freshmen and transfer students to the complexities of Kent State's rapidly expanding campus, the 25 members of Blue Key, national men's honor fraternity, conduct tours of the grounds and various buildings at the start of each school year. Other Blue Key projects designed to serve KSU include selling the student directory and planning and organizing Penny Carnival in conjunction with Cardinal Key. Members also join with the women's honorary to form the Campus Day procession and to hold an annual dance. Purpose of Blue Key is to recognize outstanding men students for excellence in the classroom and other areas of participation. To be eligible for membership, a man must have completed two years of college with a high level of scholarship. Other qualifications include good character, personality and leadership. New members are inducted at two banquets held fall and spring quarters.

Laurels—the significance of the name dates back to ancient Greece where the victor received a crown of laurels as a symbol of honor and distinction. This senior women’s honorary strives to maintain high standards of scholarship, leadership and character on campus. Laurels gives an annual scholarship and awards the President’s Medal to the graduating woman with the highest academic achievement. Service projects include ushering for numerous events, serving at the Dads’ Day breakfast, and selling flowers for Mothers’ Weekend.

A satellite tracking station in full operation is the result of the work of members of the American Institute of Astronautics and Aeronautics. A $50 grant from the Bendix Corp. was presented to the organization this year to help maintain the station, completed in 1963. The Institute’s national magazine featured a story on the Kent group and its tracking station last year. Latest project of the ambitious group is construction of a smoke tunnel for study of low speed aerodynamics. A field trip to the Cleveland NASA Lewis Research Center and an annual awards banquet were other AIAA activities. Membership is open to anyone interested in the aerospace field.

Creativity and imagination abound in the pages of the "Kent Quarterly," campus literary magazine. Original poetry, art, photography, fiction and essays submitted by students are thoroughly screened by the executive board, which chooses the best for publication. Patrons among Kent merchants, the university faculty and organizations provide funds for printing and publicity. The money is a valuable help, but the biggest aid to success is the enthusiasm of both staff members and contributors to the magazine.

Aspiring young scientists get a chance to view the facilities of the KSU laboratories each spring quarter as the American Chemical Society presents its High School Science Day. About 25 high schools send representatives. Open to all interested students, the society also holds a special yearly meeting to explain application procedures for graduate school. Among the group's social activities are the spring quarter Chemistry Banquet, held to present honors for the year, and the Chemistry Picnic, featuring a baseball contest between faculty and graduate students. To further professional knowledge, members visited the NASA Lewis Research Center in Cleveland.
The Association for Childhood Education, which boasts a membership of 150, encourages professional growth through activities such as speakers and coffee hours for education students. Other annual events include a banquet honoring senior members and a picnic in honor of officers. The motto of the Association is "To stimulate thinking, rather than advocate fixed practice."
honorary hosts regional convention

A scroll, stylus and beehive form the symbol of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary for students in education. Encouraging high professional, intellectual and personal standards and recognizing outstanding contributions to the field of education are the honorary’s aims. This year the Kent chapter was host to the group’s regional convention. Sponsoring the honor’s Day Tea and awarding the Amos T. Herr scholarship to an outstanding senior in education are other Kappa Delta Pi projects.
honorary creates interest in math

"To promote scholarship and mathematics" is the goal of Pi Mu Epsilon, national mathematics honorary. To stimulate interest in the field, speakers and films are featured at all meetings of Kent’s Ohio Epsilon chapter. Each spring quarter the honorary presents an award to the outstanding graduating math major and sponsors an informal tea for math students and faculty.

New curtains for the movable stage in Memorial Gym were provided as a service project of Kappa Omicron Phi, home economics honorary. In addition to being skilled in homemaking arts, members rate high in the academic field. At least a “B” average is required for membership.
key honors scholars

The Pi Sigma Alpha key is the symbol of scholastic achievement in the field of political science. To be eligible for membership in the honorary, students must maintain a 2.6 academic average and complete at least 15 hours of political science courses with a “B” average.

Initiation of new members takes place at quarterly banquets which feature speakers on current political and governmental topics.

Kent State’s 28-member Alpha Omega chapter, was founded in 1950.

chapter provides books

Providing books for other nations interested in speech and hearing therapy programs was the aim of Sigma Alpha Eta’s “SPARE” program. Over 100 volumes were contributed by KSU’s Alpha Eta chapter of the national honorary for speech and hearing therapists. Members compiled and distributed a speech notebook for students in the Akron School District. The chapter also sponsored a book auction and an open house for parents.
Teenagers hoping for a career in education got a glimpse of the future at Future Teachers of America High School Day, sponsored by the Student Education Association. Open to all students in the College of Education, the 200-member organization works to interest young men and women in the teaching profession. SEA activities include a faculty-student tea, sponsoring films and speakers, and awarding an annual scholarship.
sdx aids high schools

The men of Sigma Delta Chi strive to advance the standards of the press and to inspire interest in the journalistic field. This international journalism society is the oldest, largest and most select organization for men in the profession. Members work closely with the Akron Buckeye professional chapter and lend their talents to the Akron group’s annual gridiron dinner. SDX also sponsors the annual Northern Ohio Scholastic Press Association Convention at Kent, where high school journalists test their writing and photographic skills at a staged news event. The organization is open to those who aim for a journalistic career, are active on some campus publication and maintain high standards of scholarship.

A critique service for high school newspapers in northern Ohio was a new project of Theta Sigma Phi, professional honorary for women in journalism. Active in all phases of campus communications, Theta Sigs also sponsored a panel discussion on careers, featuring members of the Cleveland professional chapter. Members served as hostesses for School of Journalism coffee hours and other events. Kent’s Beta Zeta Chapter was represented at the national Theta Sig convention in Los Angeles, Calif. The honorary’s annual banquet, the Matrix Table, is held each April in commemoration of the national founding. To be eligible for membership, a coed must be a junior or senior in journalism with a high academic average.

Youth in Industry Day heads the yearly list of activities of the Business Students Association. The event is designed to promote favorable public relations between the Kent State College of Business Administration and local industry and is planned in conjunction with the business school honoraries. BSA, boasting 35 members, aims to facilitate communications between students, faculty and the various departments of the college through publication of the “Newsletter” and sponsoring student-faculty coffee hours. Members also participate in the annual Business Administration College Recognition Day. Each year BSA awards the Allyn Scholarship to a deserving undergraduate and presents the Allyn Cup Award to an outstanding graduating senior. Both awards are named for the first dean of the college. Membership in BSA is open to all business majors who have at least a 2.5 average.

Marking 52 years of service, scholarship and fellowship, Delta Psi Kappa celebrated Founder's Day on October 23. The professional fraternity for women in health and physical education also visited the Cleveland Museum of Health and sent a representative to a national convention in Washington, D.C. Delta Psi Kappa's 19 members provide secretarial assistance to the HPE department and sponsor a professional meeting for all HPE majors and minors. Members must have a 3.0 accumulative average in HPE and a 2.5 overall average.

Providing an informal forum for exchange of ideas, Omicron Delta Epsilon, economics honorary, features talks by professional economists and researchers as well as discussion of members' own research projects at its monthly meetings. High scholarship is stressed in the 20-member group. A 3.0 overall average and a better than 3.0 average in economics is required for membership. The honorary is sponsor of the Omicron Delta Epsilon Book Award, presented on Honors Day to the graduating senior with the highest scholastic achievement in economics. Climaxing the yearly program, a formal banquet is held each spring quarter for initiation of new members.

group honors hpe elite

Developing student understanding and appreciation of marketing problems and methods is the aim of the Collegiate Marketing Association, founded at KSU in the spring of 1963. The following fall, the group achieved its goal of affiliation with the American Marketing Association. Membership is open to all students majoring or minoring in marketing and also to those with an interest in the field. The association's monthly meetings feature talks and discussions by marketing executives and other representatives of the world of business.

Symbolized by the black and gold badge worn by members, Phi Epsilon Kappa works to promote high standards and ethics among teachers of health, physical education and recreation. Open to all male HPE majors with a 3.0 scholastic average in the field, the honorary presents a yearly program of films and speakers on the various phases of the health and physical education field. The 10-member group also sends delegates to state and national conventions and holds quarterly gatherings for pledges.
honorary places third

“Loyalty, service, progress,” is the motto of Pi Omega Pi, honorary for business education majors and minors. Last year, KSU’s Gamma Pi chapter placed third in national competition among 102 chapters for its activities and service projects. Members serve as monitors for state business scholarship tests in May and help plan the Youth in Industry Day events with members of BSA. The honorary’s annual banquet with members of Phi Gamma Nu is held spring quarter.

Furnishing portable typewriters for veterans’ hospitals was one of many service projects of Rho chapter of Phi Gamma Nu, professional honorary for women in business administration and business education. Members also served as hostesses for Youth in Industry Day and other College of Business Administration functions. To encourage scholastic achievement, the Phi Gamma Nu Scholarship Key is presented to the woman graduate with the highest academic average in the field of commerce.
club promotes arts

Symposiums on publishing and graduate study in literature gave members of the English Club a chance to explore potential interests and careers. The 75-member club is open to all students interested in writing, literature, and the related fine arts. Both guest speakers and reading and discussion of members' original work are featured at monthly meetings. Members usher at English department lectures and work closely with the staff of the "Kent Quarterly," campus literary magazine.

Understanding of modern management and business in the United States is the goal of the Society of the Advancement of Management. Bi-weekly meetings featuring discussion and guest speakers give the organization's 30 members insight into the problems of the world of business. Two or three field trips each quarter to industries in the Kent area also add to professional knowledge. SAM sponsors several coffee hours for business students and takes part in Youth in Industry Day.

coeds give career talks

Career talks for high school girls were a service project of the KSU Home Economics Club. The 60-member club, a chapter of the American Home Economics Association, also served as hostesses for the group's Northeastern Ohio Regional Conference. Special events in the club calendar include a picnic for new students, the January Founder's Day Banquet and the Alumni Day Banquet in April.

students take to air

A group of KSU students who are literally “up in the air” are the 24 members of the University Flying Club. Active in intercollegiate aviation competition, members take part in state and national air meets held throughout the country. The club presently owns two aircraft: a Cessna 140 and a Piper Cub, and plans to purchase more as membership grows.
The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has been active in conducting a tutorial project for needy children in the Kent area. Three sessions were held each week at the Spellman Chapel in Kent with approximately twelve university students participating in each session. The association also distributes current literature on civil rights and makes speakers available for student organizations. The NAACP purpose is to help the legal and educational struggle for civil and human rights and to attempt to pave the way for satisfactory social relations between all men. Their insignia contains the scales of justice with an open book. Their only membership requirements are agreement and compliance with the aims and principles of the national NAACP.
students bring international flavor to campus

Representing nations around the world, members of the Kent Internationals bring knowledge and understanding of other customs and cultures to the KSU campus. Highlight of their yearly activities is the International Festival, which presents music, dance, artistry and manufactured products of other lands for both campus and community. The Embassy Ball, held in May, is the featured social event of the year. Membership in the group is open to all students, both international and American. The club also serves to welcome international students to KSU and to acquaint them with the American way of life.

Creating a spirit of friendship and stimulating professional interests are the aims of the Health and Physical Education Club. All HPE majors and minors are eligible for membership in the organization. Highlighting the club’s yearly program is a camping weekend during the break between winter and spring quarters. Other activities include sponsoring professional lectures and holding an annual Halloween dance. Two representatives from the club attended the Ohio Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation Convention this year.

The color and tradition of their national heritage are brought to KSU by the 24 members of the Ukranian Club. Aims of the organization are to promote closer ties among members of the nationality through common intellectual and social pursuits and to stimulate interest in the Ukranian national culture. Members take part in the annual International Festival with dances and displays, and sponsor various social and recreational activities during the year. To be eligible for membership, a student must be of Ukranian descent.

An annual fall lecture open to the entire campus community heads the list of activities of the KSU Christian Science Organization. Area college organizations as well as prospective college students were invited to this year's lecture, which featured Elbert R. Slaughter, a member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. Preparation for the 1965 Biennial Meeting at Boston during the summer also highlighted the program for the year. The group was established in 1958.

Lectures on religion, guest speakers and trips to regional meetings in Akron and Cleveland were only part of the program planned by members of Orthodox Christian Fellowship this year. The organization provided rides to church for its 30 members each Sunday morning, since the nearest Eastern Orthodox church is in Akron. A fall quarter tea was held to welcome new freshmen and Easter vesper services were initiated on campus. Aims of the fellowship are to strive for understanding of the place of religion in campus life, to promote religious, cultural, social and educational activities and to promote Orthodoxy in all ways.

Promoting spiritual growth is the chief aim of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, but the interdenominational group also provides a full program of social and cultural activities for its 20 members. Weekly meetings feature guest speakers, discussion sessions and choral groups. On the social side, the IVCF calendar includes skating parties, hayrides and an annual Freshman Picnic. Members attend two yearly conferences with chapters from eastern Ohio campuses and give their support to missionary activities. A banquet for members and alumni is held spring quarter.

With the goals of furthering Christian knowledge and service in mind, Gamma Delta members began the year by attending the annual regional Fall Leadership Retreat at Camp Highscopec in Clinton, Michigan. Also included in their program were fellowship suppers with the congregation of Faith Lutheran Church, a “Going-Active” party for the pledges at the end of the fall quarter, Winter camp in Michigan during February, and a Town-Gown Dinner spring quarter to honor graduating members.
hillel aids hospitals

Donation of money for children's hospitals in Israel is one of the projects of Hillel, the national Jewish student organization on campus. Social and cultural programs are provided for Hillel members, in addition to religious services held each Friday night.

Featured at meetings are movies, guest speakers, style shows and folk singers. Hillel also sponsors dances and several yearly dinner meetings. Once or twice each quarter the Kent and Akron University chapters get together for a social event, such as a hootenanny and spaghetti dinner. One hundred members strong, Hillel strives to provide an atmosphere of congeniality among Kent students. The organization's activities are open to anyone at Kent State University.
A seminar on civil rights was a highlight of Newman Club activities this year. Newmanites heard faculty members and other guest speakers on such topics as the civil rights bill and race relations in the schools. The seminar was part of the Newman program to develop well-balanced Catholic leaders by promoting not only the religious aspect, but also the cultural and social sides of life. Weekly classes on the various tenets of the Catholic faith are available to members at the Newman Center. Annual events in the Newman social calendar include a spaghetti dinner, the Newman Day Banquet, and the Apple Blossom and Harvest Moon Balls. Parties are held at Halloween and Christmas and an annual reception is planned to welcome international students. The KSU club sent a delegation of eight to the National Newman Congress in Milwaukee, Wisc., last year. Symbol of the club is a seven-sided insignia surmounted by three hearts and the club motto: “Heart speaks to heart.”

Plenty of housecleaning was in order as Wesley Foundation, a ministry of the Methodist church, prepared to move into its new $185,000 “home” on E. Main St. The construction, features a “chapel-in-the-round.” The Foundation has been organized primarily for religious education and worship services. Its program includes study groups, choir, Wednesday evening service, dramatic groups, Sunday night suppers. On Election Day, it offered free baby-sitting to help “get out the vote.”
Favors for hospital trays, programs for the Portage County Home, and serving for church banquets are only a few of the service projects organized by members of Kappa Phi, the Methodist sorority. Their motto is "Others" and their aim is to encourage every Methodist woman to become an active participant in the church. The insignia of Kappa Phi is a pink rose, the pine tree and a lighted candle. Held every fall and winter quarter is a Rose Tea to introduce freshmen women to the organization. Any Methodist woman student or any woman who attends the Methodist church by preference while on campus is eligible for membership.
arnold boosts air power

A blue and gold braid on the shoulder of an Air Force ROTC cadet signifies membership in Arnold Air Society. A professional, honorary and service organization, the society’s aim is to further interest in air power on the campus, in the community and in the nation.

Boasting a first place award for trick drill competition in the eastern United States, the Silver Eagles seek to develop leadership among Air Force ROTC cadets. The 25-member drill team was selected to perform at the National Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D.C., and to serve as an honor guard for Governor James A. Rhodes in Youngstown.

angels lend feminine touch to afrotc

Lending a note of beauty and femininity to activities of Air Force ROTC are the 25 Kent State coeds in Angel Flight. Official hostesses for Arnold Air Society and AFROTC on campus, members also usher for university plays and football games and march in the city of Kent's Memorial Day parade. As a service project, members hold an annual Christmas party for underprivileged children. Personality, poise and interest are qualifications for Angel Flight membership. Outstanding members are given recognition on Honors Day.
kent pr unit serves as honor company

Honorary military fraternity for Basic Army ROTC Cadets, Pershing Rifles aims at developing leadership, physical fitness, military bearing, discipline and understanding. Kent's Pershing Rifle Unit, Company K, First Regiment, has been First Battalion Honor Company for two years. Pledges undergo a 12-week training period of intensive drill and discipline. The annual PR Cord Ball in January marks the end of the pledge period. Yearly activities include the Pledge Drill Meet, First Battalion Drill Meet, Regimental Drill Meet and tactical field training exercises.
rotc cadets seek ideals

An eagle and crossed sabres are the emblem of Scabbard and Blade, military group open to all advanced Army ROTC cadets. The group seeks to develop the ideals and practice of military education by sponsoring speakers from the regular Army and holding tactical exercises for practical training experience. The Sabre Team has marched in numerous parades and has formed a color guard for homecoming, commencement, and the mock GOP.
AIAA visits auto plant

A trip to the Twinsburg Chrysler Corp. Plant was one of many activities of the American Industrial Arts Association. Boasting 80 members, the association also presented a series of films and speakers on topics related to the field. AIAA, one of 33 departments of the National Education Association, aims at promoting industrial arts education as part of school curriculums at all levels.

books go to south seas

"Project Iloilo" headed the list of activities of Epsilon Pi Tau this year. The 20-member professional fraternity for industrial arts students collected books to start a library at the Iloilo School of Arts and Trades in the Philippines, location of another Epsilon Pi Tau chapter. Other activities include a field trip to the Birmingham, Michigan, schools, movies, lectures, and an annual banquet.
special edition marks 50th year

A half century of newspaper publishing on the Kent campus was marked by a special 12-page Homecoming edition of the “Daily Kent Stater.” Fifty years ago, the “Normal High School News,” grandfather publication to the DKS, first went to press. Today, 9000 copies of the “Stater” are delivered to KSU students four days a week. Serving as a day-today record and interpretation of every phase of university life, the “Stater” provides practical laboratory experience for journalism majors and minors. Staff positions, however, are open to any interested students. Editor and business manager of the DKS are appointed by members of the publications policy committee.
honorary serves university theatre

Sunday afternoon one-act plays, lectures and dramatic readings are activities of Alpha Psi Omega, first national honorary to be established at KSU. Acting as a guide for students interested in the dramatic arts, the honorary aims to provide practical stage experience and to recognize outstanding theatre students. Managing the house during productions is handled by Alpha Psi Omega members, who also host receptions in the green room after performances. Reward for their efforts comes in the traditional theatrical form of applause.

“Hello Mudder. Hello Fadder. Here we are at Alma Mater . . .” Sound familiar? It’s a parody on KSU life composed and sung by the Merrymen. This choral group, which specializes in four-part harmony, gives men living in residence halls the chance to sing with an organization strictly for pleasure. Their dark grey blazers bear patches carrying the “Merrymen” insignia. Members must work six quarters to keep their patches. The group holds an annual Christmas concert and serenades women’s residence halls. It performs at Freshman Preview, Pork Barrel and Campus Day. Prospective members must audition.
honorary marks tenth year

“Tau Beta Sigma for Better Bands” reads the motto of the national honorary for women band members. Promoting the existence of college and university bands is the group’s chief aim. Membership requirements include a 3.5 scholastic average in band and a 2.5 overall average. Coeds must also be enrolled in band for two consecutive quarters before pledging. The honorary’s annual banquet is held each spring quarter.

A golden lyre is the symbol of Delta Omicron, national professional music honorary for women. The group stresses high standards of scholarship, musical accomplishment and individual attainment. To qualify for membership, a coed must major or minor in music and possess a 3.0 academic average in the field. The Kent State chapter, founded in 1954, recently held a special program to mark its tenth year of fostering interest in and appreciation of music at KSU. The honorary was founded nationally in 1909. Other activities have included ushering at campus concerts and recitals and serving at receptions. Motto of the 16-member group is “Continually striving, we attain.”
bandsmen take top honors in singing

Putting their musical talents to work, the men of Kappa Kappa Psi have walked off with first place awards in Campus Day Songfest competition for two consecutive years. The honorary fraternity for bandsmen took the trophy in the independent men's division in both 1963 and 1964. Marking its 15th year at Kent State, the 19-member honorary works to create a greater interest in music and to promote the welfare of college and university bands. The organization was represented by four delegates at a district convention held in the spring at Cincinnati. The motto of Kappa Kappa Psi is "It is an honor to be selected to serve."
A golden "K" on a dark blue sweater signifies not only athletic prowess, but also membership in Varsity "K," the service organization composed of KSU athletes. All men who have earned their letter as members of the Kent State football, basketball, track or wrestling teams automatically become members of Varsity "K." In addition to serving the university, aims of the organization include promoting enthusiasm and school spirit among the student body and creating a common bond between all athletes. Founded in 1927, the group boasts a membership of 50 lettermen.

The 1965 Chestnut Burr was printed using Charcoal Black ink on 80 lb. velva-dull, supplied by S. D. Warren Company. End sheet material is Bayberry Linweave Spectra, supplied by Linweave Association.

Body copy is 12 on 14 Times Roman with heads 18 and 24 Pt. Times Roman.

The four-color process work was taken from Ecktachrome negatives rated at A.S.A. 1,200 to 2,500 printed on Ecktacolor print film by the Editor.

Cover was manufactured by The S. K. Smith Company of Chicago, Illinois and the entire book was printed to critical tolerances by Wm. J. Keller Inc. of Buffalo, N. Y.

8,600 copies were printed in this issue.
